

Weâ€™re looking for a temporary Digital Learning Instructional Designer to join our Learning & Performance team in a remote role in the United States for 12 weeks.

What youâ€™ll be doing:

Looking for an opportunity to build innovative learning solutions to best suit the content and audience? Youâ€™ll conceive, design, and develop eLearning and/or virtual training programs and materials utilizing the latest instructional and distribution methods. Youâ€™ll use contemporary methods of adult learning such as social, mobile, experiential and interactive learning to shape e-learning, virtual instructor-led, and blended approach content. Understand the big picture of business performance requirements? Youâ€™ll tailor the training to meet those needs.

Bring your understanding of the internal and external customer needs and interpret and transform them into learning material that serves to onboard and up-skill the employees.

TTECâ€™s culture exemplifies an accelerated pace, customer-centric, and collaborative work environment that fosters unlimited opportunities for personal growth and development.

Why you? What you bring:

- + Instructional design and training content development experience
- + Excellent writing and editing skills, and a keen attention to detail
- + Proficiency using Articulate Storyline/Articulate 360
- + Knowledge of adult learning theory and instructional design principles
- + Demonstrated commitment to a teamwork environment
- + Ability to manage responsibilities and priorities in a dynamic and time-critical environment
- + Proficiency using Microsoft Office applications
- + Knowledge of Adobe Illustrator, Photoshop, Dreamweaver, preferred
- + Background in training/teaching and/or adult learning, preferred

What You Can Expect:

- + Dedication to your career growth and professional development
- + Actively diverse and inclusive culture
- + Community-minded organization committed to giving back
- + Global team of curious lifelong learners guided by our company values
